

\\ APPENDIX 12: ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY STATEMENT

DB3 traces its history back to early 1900 with the formation of Kitching & Co. Operating from offices in Stockton-On-Tees and Selby it served the retail and pharmaceutical sectors for many years, and reformed in 1992 to broaden its scope to include education, commercial and historic developments.

The main board directors, Alistair Hamilton, Nathan McNamara, Matthew Savory, Tom Hill and Julius Steinert manage the combined practice. Each of the offices is controlled in accordance with BS EN ISO:14001.

The directors and the practice are committed to the provision of and maintenance of an Environmental Management System in accordance with BS EN ISO: 14001 so that DB3 can improve environmental awareness, appreciation and performance. This includes procedures and processes for the continual improvements of our abilities to save energy and prevent pollution.

The directors and the practice are committed to compliance with applicable laws, legislation and other requirements, with these requirements being continually updated via our Intranet and all matters relating to the environmental aspects of the company are freely available to all members of staff.

In conjunction with our system of Quality Management to BS EN ISO:9001 we conduct a structured system of Management Meetings which provides the framework for setting and reviewing targets and ensures consistency of approach throughout the office.

Interaction with our system of Quality Management ensures that our Environmental procedures are documented, implemented and maintained and thus provides a framework for setting and reviewing environmental objectives and targets.

We ensure that all issues relating to the Environmental Standards are fully communicated to all members of staff via the Intranet to ensure constant access to our Policy and documentation.

DB3 are fully committed to utilising its EMS to create greener, environmentally sensitive projects.

This policy and illustrations of our work in respect of BS EN ISO:14001 are available to the public via access to our website: www.darntonb3.com.

Alistair Hamilton – Managing Director

